County waste department to provide free recycling class Saturday, Jan. 23

Become a better recycler by taking a new class offered by the Riverside County Department of Waste Resources. Recycling 1-2-3 is offered to Riverside County residents for the first time on Saturday, Jan. 23, from 9-10 a.m. Registration for this virtual class is free and the class can be accessed on any computer, tablet or smartphone.

County residents often have questions about what goes in their recycling bin and where to take their recyclable material. By learning the three basics of recycling – what you can always recycle, what you can never recycle and what you should be cautious about recycling – every resident can become a better recycler. The class will also discuss how to avoid contamination and why it's so important to recycle. Attendees will also get tips, resources and valuable links that will help residents be a better recycler at home or in the office. Plus the class will share some basics on compliance with California recycling laws for businesses.
